FORTY WONDERFUL YEARS OF MUCK AND MAGIC!

FARMS FOR CITY CHILDREN

Farms for City Children founded by Clare and Michael Morpurgo in 1976 is celebrating a very special anniversary next year.

Forty years on, the charity now has three farms and every year over 3000 children from cities and towns across the UK spend the most memorable week of their young lives.

Michael Morpurgo has called Farms for City Children his greatest story and to help celebrate the work and achievements of this unique charity, Farms for City Children are putting on a special gala matinee performance of the National Theatre's award-winning War Horse on Thursday 25th February at 2pm at the New London Theatre, Drury Lane to which 1000 children who have visited the farms will be invited to attend as guests of the friends of Farms for City Children.

We would love to invite you to be part of this unique occasion. Tickets are available for £150 including an invitation to the celebratory drinks afterwards with Clare and Michael Morpurgo, a chance to meet Joey, and have a signed copy of War Horse illustrated by Rae Smith.
